The unsightly looking fence which has for a long time hid from view the new County Court House in Newark has been removed, and a photograph has been taken of the building, which makes a very bandsome and commanding appearance. It was expected that some of the offices in the old building would be moved into the new one last Saturday. but on account of the decorators not having finished their work, the removal had to be delayed. Now it is stated that the various departments can be made. The approaches and trout steps of the new building cannot be put up until the old court house is removed. As soon se the old building is quite vacated it will be demolished, and to protect the new one from damage the party having the contract for tearing down the old structure is required to erect a wooden screen, or fender, in front of the columns of the new building, in order to avoid any damage or injury from failing stones. The desire has been expressed by many citizens to have the old structure preserved and rebuilt as a rare specimen of Egyptian architecture, but it is the belief of experts, both architects and builders, that the sandstone material could not be taken down and rebuilt without so much marring, abrasion and disintegration as would make the reerected building snything but attractive. The steps and approaches to the new building will occupy the entire site of the present court house, and will constitute one of the attractive architectural features of the new one. The front doorsill will be nearly twenty-five feet higher than the bottom of the lowest step, but the approach will be eased by several broad platform-like terraces, and the steps will be broad and fow. The County Clerk's offices are to be on eth of the building, the Sheriff's offices at the High street end, while the Begister's offices will take up the Market street side, The meeting room for the Board of Freeholders will be on the Market street side on the second floor, back of which will be the Criminal Court

The Court House Commission is composed of the following: Dr. Leelie D. Ward, first vice-president of the Prudential Insurance Company; Judge George R. Gray of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Apreals, and Director Thomas McGowan of the Board of Freebolders,

The Board of Freeholders has consented to allow the Daughters of Liberty the privilege to raise the first American flag on the new court house, and at a recent meeting of the united flag committee in East Orange arrangements were made for the flag raising, which will probably take place in October. It is expected that Governor Stokes will McGowan will receive the flag on behalf

Postmaster Hayes of Newark has effeeted arrangements whereby that city the general belief that the left eye and Montelair will have an early morn- for every chief becomes a star the moing exchange of mails. Beginning last ment the chief in question is done with Tuesday an advance pouch was dispatched from the Newark post-office at 5 A. M. and carried to Montelair by trolley, instead of 6.15 A. M. by train as formerly. This pouch will carry all the heavy Western and Southern mails which formerly accumulated in the Newark office from midnight until 5,45, the time of closing the mails, and the early dispatch by trolley will give the Montclair office an opportunity to nort all of this mail in time for the first carriers' delivery. The return pouch to Newark from Montclair will be so arranged as to give Montciair patrons the benefit of close connections at the Market street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad

It is stated that arrangements are also under way to give Bloomfield a later dispatch daily, except Sunday. The plans are to disputen to this town a pouch at 8.20 P. M., thus cutting in on the old sepedule, under which there was po dispatch between 4.30 P. M. and 5 45 A. M. It is thought that the new pouch will be put in operation next Tuesday.

MAKING PORCELAIN.

Trade in the World. The maker of porcelain and pottery has decidedly the most exciting and romantic trade in the world. The great factories of Sevres and Dresden were founded by Bernard Palissy. This man invented white enamel, but it took him sixteen years to make the invention-sixteen years of hunger, misery and persecution, which culminated in the episode, used in H. in two or three weeks the removal of A. Jones' play of "The Middleman," wherein Palissy maintained his furnace fire by burning all the furniture in his house and finally (pened the furnace door to find within the glaze which he had sought throughout the best years

> Bottgher invented hard porcelain, He was an alchemist, and one day, chancing to discover that his powdered wig was unusually heavy, he inquired the cause and found that the weight was due to the kaolin with which the wig was powdered. This kaolin was the substance for lack of which Bottgher's investigations had for years

When Elers opened a porcelain factory at Burslem he employed none but the most stupid and illiterate workmen. so that his secret processes might not become known. But Samuel Astbury resolved to learn the Elers method, and, affecting ignorance and stupidity, he got a place in the factory, mastered all of Elers' secrets and eventually opened a plant of his own, wherein he duplicated in every detail he work of Elers .-

MANY, MANY DOCTORS.

Sixteenth Conjury Wager That

Might Be Won Today. The story is told in Joubert's "Popular Errors Concerning Medicine," published at Bordeaut, France, in 1579, that one Gonelle, & jester at the court of the Duke of Ferrara, insisted once upon a time that the trade which had the most followers was that of doctor. To prove his assertion he left his home one morning to go to the palace with his nightcap on and his jaws wrapped up. The first person he met stopped him with the question, "What is the matter with you, Conelle?" "A terrible toothache." "Oh, is that all? I'll tell you what will cure it." And every person he met had some advice to give

When the fester reached the duke's chamber, the same question and answer were repeated. "Ah," said the prince, "I know of something that will take the pain right away." Gonelle instantly threw up his kerchief, saying: "And you, too, monseigneur, are a doctor? I have only passed through one street in coming from my house to you and have counted more than 200 of them. I believe I could find 10,000 in the city." Whether the story is true or false, it could be told again in our days, and Genelle would win his wage without dispute.

The Stars Were Once Human Eyes. The most remarkable belief or superstition concerning the human eye is one that is current in Australia. mong the natives of that country it it. The sun, they say, is the eye of the "greater god" and the moon the eye of the "lesser god." All the stars were once the left optics of human beings of high rank. Shungle, a celebrated chief, once ate the eye of a valiant chief, thinking thereby to increase the brilliancy of his own "eye star." But the eve burned through Shungle's belly and killed him, whereupon his own left eye became joined to the one he had eaten, and the two may now be seen as a beautiful deable star lying just to the east of the Southern Cross.

Liquid Corn. An easterner was prospecting in the north Georgia mountains when he came on a native apparently clinging to the side of a steep hill tilling corn. The prospector stopped for a chat, and the mountaineer, nothing loath for a rest in the shade from his fatiguing toll, was agreeable.

"Say, friend, how in the world do you get the corn down off that hillside after it is ready for harvest?" asked the "In jugs," wan the laconic and prob-
